DIARY NOTES

DD/S [REDACTED]

12 May 1965

1. The Director said that he doesn't like the smell of his office. I told [REDACTED] to check the air conditioning and, if necessary, to spray the office with a pine air freshner every morning so that it smells clean and fresh.

2. At the Executive Committee Meeting this morning:

a. The Director said that he does not want "Vice Admiral, USN (Ret.)" after his signature. He wants papers prepared for "William F. Raborn, Director of Central Intelligence."

b. The Director mentioned that one of our senior people in [REDACTED] was sick. No one else knew anything about it. I checked with the Office of Medical Services, who in turn checked with [REDACTED] and found that the Deputy Chief [REDACTED] had suffered a possible heart strain a few days ago. He was told to rest for eight hours and to get plenty of rest each day. He is now working at his house and has a slight cold but is all right. I assume that the Admiral scooped us all because [REDACTED] was treated by a Navy doctor.

3. We have reserved three light sedans in the garage for the Director, Dick Helms, and Mr. Kirkpatrick since the [REDACTED] crisis began. I told [REDACTED] to return two of the cars to the motor pool and have so advised [REDACTED]

4. [REDACTED] talked with me about NPIC's requirement for additional space within the next two or three years. He understood that this requirement will necessitate new construction, probably contiguous to [REDACTED]. I told him that, although nothing has yet been approved, I thought he should acquaint the General Services Administration with this probable requirement so that the real estate will be available if and when needed.

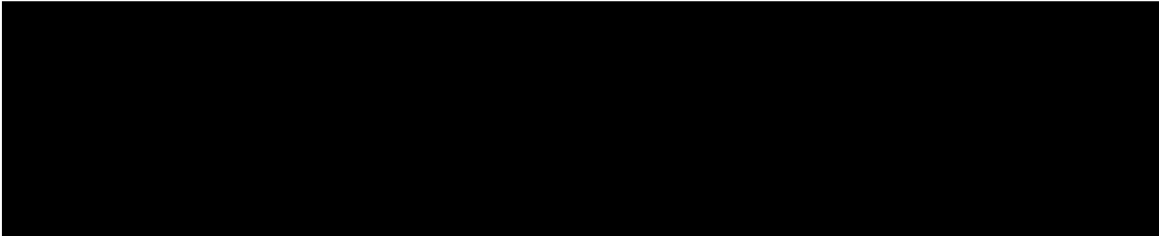

5. I talked with Emmett Echols about Mr. McCone's memorandum to me dated 27 April 1965, subject: "Official Gifts." I asked Emmett to check with the General Counsel to make sure that these gifts could be transferred to CIA property records without any further ado, after which the Administrative Officer in the Office of the Director should be requested to sign a Memorandum of Receipt for these items. I said that I would expect a report that this has been done.

6. Mr. Kirkpatrick inquired whether DD/S had any items to be presented to the President's Foreign Intelligence Advisory Board next week. I told him that I did not unless he would like a polygraph presentation, which we could present on short notice.

8. I received a telephone call from Mr. James Cassidy on behalf of a friend of his who is interested in employment with the Agency. I sent Mr. Cassidy a brochure to send to his friend. He will call his friend in Chicago and will then let me know whether he would like to be interviewed in Washington or in the Chicago area.
